

Stages of Development of Personal Adaptational Readiness for Educational Environment Risks

IRINA V. ARENDACHUK

Saratov State University

83, Astrakhanskaya, Saratov, 410012, Russia

e-mail: arend-irina@yandex.ru

The article identifies and describes six stages of formation of personal adaptational readiness for educational environment in dynamics of the course of its life, it also defines basic personal new formations, which determine high level of its development. The article shows that adaptational readiness for educational environment of pre-school educational institutions forms in early childhood and adaptational readiness for school educational environment forms during the preschool age. It proves that changes of school educational environment at different levels of education develop personal adaptational readiness for risks, and risks of profession-related educational environment determine formation of adaptational readiness for professional activity, professional development and person's self-education.

Key words: adaptation; adaptational readiness; educational environment; stages of adaptational readiness for educational environment risks formation.