

Educational activity of a Pedagogical Higher Educational Institution student in the interconnection with personal development spheres in the professional training

G.K. PARINOVA

Abstract. The article discusses the problem of multi aspect function of the internal nature of a personality, on the one hand, and versatile forms of its manifestation in the personal professional training of students of the Pedagogical Higher Educational Institution, on the other hand. It determines the grounds for research of productive educational activity of a student in the complex of four spheres of personal development. It shows productive generalized educational activity as a form of versatile activities of a student, that includes actualization of personal spheres in the process of the work of productive generalization mechanism, followed by the intensive flow of the processes itself, which as a unity provides its success in achieving professional competence as the ability and readiness for pedagogical activity. The applied aspect of the problem under study can be realized in the pedagogical practice of the professional training of future teachers.

Key words: personal professional training of students, educational activity, productive educational activity, spheres of a personal development, self-processes, to achieve success, to master the profession.